Pioneer Line of Steamers

FOR

Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, via Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal.

THE COMMODIOUS STEAMERS PIONEER and Commodore Adams, will leave Newberne for Norfolk on TUESDAY of each week at 8 o'clock A M, connecting with the different lines of steamers for the above-named points. On and after the first day of December next they will leave on Tuesday and Friday of each week, making semi-weekly trips. Shippers of Goods will receive every facility and accommodation for the transportation of the same, as arrangements have been made with the different companies to forward goods to this line at low rates and without delay. Each of these steamers are capable of carrying through the canal without difficulty, as they were built expressly for the trade. They are fitted up with STATE ROOMS and BERTHS capable of accommodating thirty-five passengers. Every attention will be paid to the comfort of passengers, who will not be subject to the inconvenience of transfer to other vessels, but will be taken through direct without charge.

The tables of the steamers are liberally supplied with the best the market affords. Families traveling will find it to their interest to take this line, as they will thereby escape the danger and discomfort of a sea route, and the fatigue of railroad travel.

On the 15th of December next, if the business of the line warrants it, the steamer Williams will be put on the route, and tri-weekly trips will be made.

For freight or passage apply to Whitford, Dill & Co., Newbern, N C.

DAVID WILLIAMS, Proprietor

The scarcity of money however, obliges us to say to our friends, that responsible and prompt persons who desire the Sentinel need not delay sending us their names at once, who can send us the Cash in a short time. The money may be sent us by the Rail Road Conductors or the Express Company.

THE PEOPLE must be trusted with their Government, and if trusted, my opinion is that they will act in good faith, and restore their former constitutional relations with all the States composing the Union.—Andrew Johnson's Letter to Gov. Sharkey, of Mississippi.

Reconstruction.

The proposition to return to the Union, was a grateful one to the feelings of the Southern people, after four years of unsuccessful turmoil, blood shed and ruin. Peace and quiet was a boon they all sought and desired. The liberal terms held out by the conqueror excited their admiration, won their confidence and affection, and excited their hopes of an early restoration.—It is possible, that the public press in the South, has contributed too much, unwittingly, to the idea that restoration or reconstruction is an easy matter or can be accomplished in a day.

On the proposed plan of the President as understood by the South, reconstruction appeared easy. To comply with his demands was the purpose and is still the purpose of the South. To do, as promptly and with as good a grace as possible, what he demanded of the South, as the terms of reconstruction, was what all were willing and ready to do. That being done, it was supposed the President would declare the States restored, by proclamation. Under this impression, the idea of reconstruction was not so difficult.

But however strong may be the disposition on the part of the President to treat the South with forbearance, he is compelled to listen to the demands of the dominant party of the country, and to yield to some extent to their demands. The views of that party are known to the public. They have not concealed their purposes, at least, the radical portion of it. How far the bulk of the party will sustain the President, or yield to the clamors of the radicals, cannot, yet be determined. The tone of the President's Message will to some extent, enable the country to judge what he has determined upon. Yet the determined spirit of the radicals and their strength in Congress, should admonish the South not to expect too much, nor to anticipate an early restoration. If the entire South had fully met all the President's requisitions—if all the elections had accorded with his wishes fully, while the South would have been backed by the force of his name and his recommendation, even then, the resistance of the radicals is to be overcome, before reconstruction can be fully effected.

If an honest desire to return to the Union with a full purpose to observe all the obligations which that relation imposes, be a test of the loyalty of the South and a proof of its sincerity, then we are sure, the President has no grounds to doubt its loyalty. Popular elections among us, always influenced more or less by the popularity or unpopularity of the candidates, and but seldom afford a full test of the status of the men elected. As we have repeatedly said, no man believed by the people to be disloyal to the government, could be elected among us. But where the loyalty and merits of the candidates are to be determined by the popular vote, and the matter is left to the free choice of the people, men who have most personal popularity will be selected in preference to those who are not so, though they may be preferred by the government.

This idea therefore, ruled in the elections in this State, and the inference that the election of this or that man indicated hostility to the government has no foundation in fact, and is a misconstruction of the views and feelings of the people. We cannot therefore bring ourselves to the belief, that when time has been given to the President and the Congress to look fairly into this matter, that the result of the elections in this State, can in any wise affect prejudicially, the relations of the State with the Federal government.

Gettysburg.

A friend who has lately visited Gettysburg informs us, that the identity of many of the graves of Southern soldiers, is fast being lost. The graves of those who died in the field Hospitals were originally marked by inscriptions on pine boards, but these boards have often been knocked down by cattle or otherwise removed. An intelligent and reliable citizen of the town, Mr. Hiram Warren, has made it his business to take notes of all things pertaining to the battle field and its victims, and for a moderate compensation, will assist the friends of deceased soldiers in discovering and preserving their identity.

Those interested should communicate to Mr. W. at once, as some of the farmers in whose fields the dead are buried, will feel compelled to plough those fields next spring, and thus by delay the bones of many a gallant and beloved soldier will be forever unknown.

By the by, ought not some effort be made to collect the Southern dead in a common burial ground?

U. S. Senators.

The Legislature on yesterday elected John Pool, Esq of Bertie, U. S. Senator for the short term. Mr. Pool is understood to have been the [illegible] of Gov. Holden and his friends.

The Elections.

The elections by the Legislature we believe, are nearly through with, and the people will be glad when they are completed. We shall give a full list of those elected, when the roll is filled up.

We have almost entirely avoided allusion to the subject pending the elections. We do not regard it to be the province of the press, to call representatives to account for their conduct, or attempt to hold the rod of terror over them. They are amenable to their own constituency for their course, and the press has discharged its duty, when it has laid the facts connected with the action of the legislator before them.

The Legislature was known to have a good working majority of men, who in the late election supported Mr. Worth. It was a fair inference to expect, at least under ordinary circumstances, that in the elections they would have supported Worth men, or those opposed to the principle and policy of the "strait sect" party. In this the people have been disappointed. Most of the persons elected to office have been those who were understood to co-operate with Gov. Holden.

Inducements and arguments for this course were doubtless well plied by those who consider themselves the special friends of the government, and in some instances they were successful.—Whether the constituency of those who departed from the usual policy, will approve of the course pursued, or whether the government will be propitiated by this course, remains to be seen.

Rebuke Deserved.

We learn that Mr. Jenkins of Warren, of the House, on yesterday, administered a deserved castigation upon the young scribbler of the Standard, for the uncalled for attack upon him in that paper on yesterday. Mr. J. the day before, in speaking of Mr. Graham, had upon good authority we learn, stated that he did not think the President had ever read Mr. Graham's petition and that his attention had not been called to it by Mr. G's. friends. This is made the basis of an unjustifiable attack upon Mr. J. which he repelled with decided effect. His remarks were not reported; our reporter expecting Mr. J. to commit them to paper himself.

The President's Message.

The telegraphic summary which we give of the President's Message, will be very gratifying to our readers. It is but a re-affirmation of the positions which he has uniformly maintained in regard to reconstruction. His views are such, as must be supported by all who really appreciate the spirit and tenor of the Constitution. We trust that Congress will have enough of the true spirit of Americans, to endorse and carry out his positions.

The Spanish War Upon Chili.

A Blockade Complication—A Successful Revolution in Peru.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The steamer Atlantic, with $800,000, from California has arrived.

The Spanish Admiral Pareja continues to threaten to bombard the Chilian ports, without daring to carry them into effect. He announces the blockade is restricted to the six principal ports, Valparaiso, Baldira, Coquimbo, Herraturra, Torne and Torcahuaus. All others are left open to commerce.

This new arrangement attacks the interest of foreigners exclusively, and is an acknowledgement of the illegality of the former blockade, and leaves this Government subject to the claims of the neutrals injured thereby.

Several destructive fires have occurred at Valparaiso.

The Revolution in Peru has triumphed and peace has been restored. The overthrown President has refuge on an English war steamer, and is on his way to Panama. Lima was captured on the morning of November 6, by the revolutionary troops.—The only resistence was by about four hundred troops in the plaza, where the palace was located. They fought until all were shot.

The new Government will doubtless repudiate the treaty with Spain, and make a common cause with Chili, the overthrow of the Spanish treaty having been the object of the revolution. The Central American Republics are all at peace.

[Special Dispatch to the New York News.]

There is reason to believe that the English Government has made a formal demand upon Mr. Seward for the suppression of all public Fenian demonstrations, and that the failure to do so will be regarded as a hostile act. The demand is based upon disclosures recently made in England relative to the strength and object of the Fenian movement, and the matter was considered in the Cabinet meeting to-day. The Radicals are getting somewhat un easy.

It is reported that the President has communicated to Senator Doolittle enough of his plans to encourage the Conservatives in the belief that some of the Southern members may be admitted during the session. The movement in favor of Mr. Raymond for Chairman for the Ways and Means Committee, in place of Mr. Stevens, promises to succeed, but is not certain yet.

APPLICATIONS FOR PARDON.—Included in the list of applications for pardon which have been filed away for future consideration, are the petition of 122 ex-officers of the United States navy, 129 rebel general officers, and 83 members of the Confederate Congress. There is also a large list of rebel leaders, including George Davis, attorney general. Trenholm, secretary of the treasury, Sedon, secretary of war, Mallory, secretary of the navy, and Reagen, postmaster general, of the Confederates; A. H. Stephens, their vice-president; Governors Smith and Letcher, of Virginia, Lowe, of Maryland, Magrath, of South Carolina, Moore, of Alabama, and Clark, of Mississippi. There are also several large petitions for the release of Jeff. Davis, which, with the others, are filed away with the mass of documents accumulated in the pardon bureau, to await developments. Many of the applications for pardon are endorsed by our own generals and senators.—Wash. Star.

NORTH CAROLINA LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

MONDAY, Dec. 5th, 1865.

Prayer by the Rev. T. E. Skinner.

Mr. Gash presented memorials from the Grand Juries of Buncombe and Transylvania Counties urging that the General Assembly represent to the National Government the necessity of colonizing the freedmen, and this failing, for the Legislature pass stringent laws for their government. Referred to the committee on Propositions and Grievances.

Mr. Warren from the committee on the Judiciary, who were to inquire and report whether the United States Senatorial term commencing March 4th 1861, is vacant or not, submitted a report, in which all the committee concur, that the term is vacant, and recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the Senate, the seat of the Hon. Thos. L. Clingman in the Senate of the United States is vacant; and that it is the duty of the General Assembly to fill such vacancy.

The resolution was unanimously adopted upon a call of the yeas and nays, upon motion of Mr. Warren.

Pending the passage of the resolution,

Mr. Howard said, as the introducer of the resolution, he wished to say a few words in explanation. The question depended upon the action of the Senate of the United States, and having no information as to what the action of that body had been, the Senator from Mecklenburg and himself had concluded, that the introduction of the resolution was the proper step to procure it. The resolution was introduced after the Senate had intimated its intention to adjourn, and it was well known that the committee would report this morning. The Senator from Mecklenburg and himself attended the meeting of the committee, and concurred in the report and resolution. It was therefore evident that the resolution was not introduced for delay or to set up any claim from Mr. Clingman, but simply to be satisfied of the fact that a vacancy existed, as in that contingency only could we constitutionally elect, and yet with the usual eagerness to misrepresent his action it was this morning represented as his purpose to be in opposition, aye factious opposition to the administration of President Johnson, and that he was encouraging a disloyal sentiment in the State. Mr. H. said those that made this charge were either so blind from prejudice and spleen, that they could not see, or they uttered what they knew to be untrue for personal or party purposes. He noticed the charge for the first and last time. He was conscious of his own good faith to the Government, and he neither approved nor will he follow the course of those who stood ready to defame any portion of the people of the State. He believed they were all loyal and their character would ultimately stand vindicated before the nation. He had heretofore acted, and he should continue hereafter to act, while representing his constituency as a freeman representing freemen.

Mr. Ferebee said as he had participated in the discussion on yesterday, it was due to himself to make a brief statement. He did not say yesterday, nor does he believe now that the Hon. Thos. L. Clingman is entitled to his seat in the Senate of the United States. No one who heard his remarks, believes he entertains such a thought.—Every Senator remembers that his argument was hypothetical. It gave some annoyance to other to answer it, and he chose to use it. For his acts on this floor he is answerable to his country, his God and his conscience. He professed to be as true and loyal to the Government, as those who find it so convenient, because he did not submit to certain dictation, to report their oft denied charges of factious opposition. He had no ends to subserve but those of his country, his God and truth. He did not admit the right of those gentlemen, who are daily and nightly running from door to door, to frighten timid men—to decree what shall be his political faith or course of action.

All here knew he never favored the doctrine of secession; he intended in good faith and true loyalty, to support President Johnson's policy in restoring North Carolina to her civil relations with the United States. And in doing so, he would claim the right of a free man, to exercise his best judgment, as to the proper mode to be pursued.

A message was sent to the House, upon motion of Mr. Leach of Davidson, to go into an election for United States Senator for the term beginning March 4th, 1861.

NOTICE.—This celebrated Fire Proof safe is no longer made and sold by SILAS C. HERRING, his license to make and sell them having expired.

The thousands of Certificates from Merchants, Bankers and Mechanics of all trades, that have been given in favor of this the only true "SALAMANDER," renders it useless for the subscribers to multiply words in its favor, as full thirty thousand of "WILDER'S PATENT SALAMANDER SAFES," have been manufactured and sold in the United States; and, in almost every large fire that has taken place during the last seventeen years, these Safes have been subjected to the severest tests, and not one of the "Genuine Salamanders" has ever been destroyed.

Safes sold at New York price, with the freight to Wilmington added. No commission charged in Wilmington. We are prepared to take orders for these celebrated Safes. Samples can be seen at our office in a few days.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.

The President's Message to Congress to-day says:

Resistance to the General Government having exhausted itself, the first question to be considered is, whether the territory within the limits of the States which attempted to secede, should be held as conquered territory under military authority emanating from the President. But he considers military governments established for an indefinite period, would have afforded no security for the early suppression of discontent, and would have divided the people into vanquishers and vanquished, and would have envenomed hatred, rather than have restored affection.

The true theory is, all pretended acts of secession were, from the beginning, null and void.—States cannot commit treason, nor screen the individual citizens who may have committed treason. The States attempting to secede placed themselves in a condition where their functions were suspended, but not destroyed. But if any State neglects or refuses to perform its offices, there is the more need that the General Government should maintain its authority, and as soon as practicable to resume the exercise of all its functions. On this principle he acted, and gradually and quickly by almost imperceptable steps, sought to restore the rightful energy of the General Government and of the States.—To that end Provisional Governors were appointed.

All parties in the late terrible conflict must work together in harmony. It is not too much to ask that on the one side, the plan of restoration shall proceed in conformity with a willingness to cast the disorders of the past into oblivion, and that on the other, evidence of sincerity in the future maintenance of the Union, shall be put beyond any doubt, by the ratification of the proposed anti-slavery amendment to the Constitution. This amendment being adopted, it would remain for the States to resume their places in the two branches of Congress, and thereby complete the work of restoration.

The President says, he has no authority to make freedmen electors; that remains with the States. They can decide whether it is to be adopted at once or introduced gradually with conditions. Good faith, however, requires the security of the freedmen in their liberty and property the right to labor and to claim a just return of their labor.

It will be his constant aim to promote peace and unity with all foreign nations. He believes all of them are actuated by the same disposition. The accordance of belligerent rights to insurgent States was unjustifiable, but Great Britain was an exception. She built ships, furnished men and material of war to insurgents. Justification for it cannot be sustained before the tribunal of the world, but at the same time he does not advise any present attempt at redress by acts of legislation. For the future, the friendships between the two countries must rest on the basis of mutual justice. We have wisely forborne to become propagandists of Republicanism, but it would be cause of great calamity to ourselves and the cause of good government, should one foreign power challenge the American people to its defense against foreign interference; and he relies on the wisdom and justice of those powers, to respect the system of non interference which has so long been sanctioned by time.

A Serious Mistake.

We think we do no injustice to the Raleigh Standard when we declare the opinion, that it is responsible for much of the misconception which exists at the North relative to the frank and manly sentiments of the Southern people. It has been edited for many years with ability and boldness; indeed, of late its expressions have been reckless in their audacity.

In this it has been sustained by the Progress, which has been the echo of its more able cotemporary.

As an evidence of the impression made by these two journals at the North, we copy a paragraph from the Cincinnati Commercial:

"The conduct of North Carolina, as exhibited in her election returns has produced general disappointment. North Carolina was supposed to be the most firm supporter of the Union cause among all the rebellious States. The defeat however, of Governor Holden, a man of ability, and, it was thought, of great popularity in the State, proves quite the opposite, and that the views of the people of that State have been greatly misunderstood.

"The Raleigh Standard declares the rebels of North Carolina would crush the Union men into the ground to-day, had they the power. They would murder, burn and hang as before. The old leaven is still in their hearts. They are yet traitors.' Or as the Progress says: 'Leniency toward leading traitors has, instead of humbling and improving them, only emboldened them to have treason recognized as a virtue."

Adopting these statements as true, the Commercial concludes that "the views of the people of the State have been greatly misunderstood." Its inference is erroneous. The defeat of Mr. Holden, who, while undoubtedly "a man of ability," is personally very unpopular, has nothing under heaven to do with the Union or disunion sentiments of North Carolina. The opposition to that gentleman rests on very different grounds.

He was one of the most fiery of all the secession leaders of that State: the reputed author of the famous battle cry of the "last dollar and the last ditch." and one of the most eloquent sustainers of the "Ordinance" that took North Carolina out of the Union.

Indeed, he was so orthodox a member of the Calhoun party, that when the great South Carolinian died, Mr. Holden commemorated the melancholy event in some elegaic verses, which showed no ordinary skill in metrical composition, while they breathed the most tender reverence for the departed luminary of the States Rights school.

This fine effusion can be found in any farm house in North Carolina, in a book of "Elegant Extracts," used in her academies.

On the other hand Mr. Worth, who is a Quaker, was a consistent peace man, modest but decided in his views; and it is between these two that the people of North Carolina have chosen.

With these facts before it, the Commercial will, indeed, see that the people of "that State have been greatly misunderstood." For it is clear that they have elevated to the Executive chair of the "Old North State" a man upon whose garments there is not even the smell of the fires of secession.

They have done this sooner than sustain a man thoroughly identified with that doctrine before, and during a part of the war. If this be disloyalty, then loyal men may make the most of it. But we object to it being used unfairly.—We protest against such astounding statements as those made by the Standard and Progress.

The first named paper declares that the people of North Carolina "would crush the Union men into the ground to day, had they the power. They would murder, burn and hang as before. The old leaven is still in their hearts. They are yet traitors." These two last sentences are poisoned jarelins; but dropping the figure, let us see, first of all, what they mean.

A fair construction shows the meaning to be that the people of North Carolina are as violent to day as they were during the heat and passion of the war. How, then, does it happen, that they never hanged, or crushed men into the ground when they had the power? How is it that Mr. HOLDEN never suffered either of these unpleasant operations? The fact that the editor of the Standard, and many others whom we could name, still survive, is a flat contradiction of this declamatory statement.

So far as the murders and burning were concerned, they were perpetrated by deserters from the Confederate army, some of whom palliated their actions by the open assertion, that they were but acting in accordance with the teachings of the Raleigh Standard.

If any men were hanged, except according to due process of law, in the State, we are ignorant of the fact,

But the truth is, that the so called loyalists of North Carolina were the men who clamored for rebellious blood. Men who had diligently sought for contracts to collect saltpetre and thus to avoid becoming food for powder, held meetings and called out lustily for halters and confiscation.—After having worked for the various departments of the Confederate army, they came forward and declared that they had no stain on their hands, and forthwith demanded blood and plunder.

These as the facts. We commend them to the notice and consideration of our cotemporary. The two sections of the country have graves enough between them to chill and alienate, without the addition of the small irritants of a mutual misrepresentation.

North Carolina piled up her gallant dead upon every field, and they now lie in these intervening graves, heaped up between North and South.

The cause to which she gave her best and bravest, is numbered among the things that were. It has taken its place in the grand historic caravan which travels down the wasted years of the "Great Rebellion," and now, with a noble candor and a high courage she has addressed herself to the task before her.

Give the gallant old State credit for her courageous fidelity to the lost cause, and see in her valor and endurance a fit guarantee of the honesty of her present protestations.—Norfolk Virginian.

The nearest approach to it was "Omnia mutantur," &c., and this is found in Borbonious, a German writer of the middle ages.

"Smelling of the Lamp" is to be found in Plutarch, and is there attributed to Pythias. "A little bird told me," comes from Ecclesiastes x. 20: "For a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter."

"He that fights and runs away,
May live to fight another day."

These lines, generally attributed to Hudibras, are really much older. They are to be found in a book published in 1556. The same idea is, however, expressed in a couplet published in 1542, while of the few fragments of Meander, the Greek writer, that have been preserved, embodies the same idea in a single line. The couplet in Hudibras is:

"For those that fly may fight again,
Which he can never do that's dead."

"Hell is paved with good intentions," though found in Johnson and Herbert, was obviously in their day a proverbial expression. Walter Scott ascribes it to "some stern old divine."

"There's a good time coming," is an expression used by Sir Walter Scott in "Rob Roy," and has doubtless, for a long time been a familiar saying in Scotland.

Eripuit coelo fulmen, sceptrumque tyrannis, was a line upon Franklin written by Turgot, the Minister of Louis XVI. It is, however, merely a modification of a line by Cardinal Polignac, Eripuitque Jovi fulmen, Pœboque sagittas, which in turn was taken from a line of Marcus Manilius, who says of Epicurus, Eripuitque Jovi fulmen viresque Tonanti.

Vox populi, vox Dei. The origin of this familiar phrase is not known, but it is quoted as a proverb by William of Malmsbury, who lived in the early part of the twelfth century.

The President's Forthcoming Message—Congress to Build upon Mr. Johnson's Policy—Gradual Admission of Southern Members.

[Special Dispatch to the Baltimore Sun.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Of course, at this juncture, speculation is rife concerning the probable character of the message. The horoscope of a very keen politician in a large way, and of one who has ample means of information, is that the President will urge the necessity of an early reconstruction of the Union: that Congress must build upon his policy mainly, and that the President would follow in such additions as would probably be made. As a matter of course, it is felt that he will uphold in his message the general ideas that he has commenced. How far they may be adopted or be disregarded, remains to be seen. It is urged in influential quarters friendly to the South, that a little time for the comparing of notes, by men of sense and judgment, will serve to promote reconstruction.—Senators and Representatives will be gradually admitted, if we are to give weight to the assurances of some leading republicans. NEW GOODS.

New Line Opened! Makes Two Trips to the Old Line's One!

A CREECH HAS JUST RETURNED FROM the North, where he has bought his second supply of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

Embracing the various New Styles of the Season together with Ladies' Cloaks Long Shawls, Breakfast Shawls, Ladies and Misses' Goods, Ladies and Misses' Hoop Skirts, Ladies and Misses' Balmoral Shoes, Gent's Boots and Shoes, Boys' Youths and Children's Boots and Shoes. Felt Hats, the Derby the Dasher, the Planter's wide brim and other styles for Men's wear. Boys, Youths and Children's Hats. Wood and Willow Ware, rockery and Glass Ware, and a superior lot of Family Groceries.

Take my stock altogether, I have one among the largest and most desirable and complete stocks of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods in the City.

Now, allow me to say that I bought my Goods to sell, and they must and shall be sold; but I don't expect to take a piece of poetry in one hand and a full grown humbug in the other and climb up to the clouds and fish out the birds of Paradise and gently bring them down with a placard stuck on their backs, "Selling out cost! sell out cost!" No, I deal in no such humbug. I keep no such a class of Goods. I keep no time worn shelf rubbed, defaced or dusty Goods: dust so thick you can rub it off with a knife. My Goods are all new, and of good styles and I intend to sell them as low as anybody that bought goods with the expectation of paying for them, and the man that sold the goods to them that don't intend to pay for them is a fool and the man that sells is a rascal. Now this is plain talk, but 'tis no slip of the tongue. I mean what I say, and say what I mean. I have lived here and sold goods here for twenty years. I expect to remain here I pay my taxes to support Institutions of the City County and the State. I expect to continue to do so. I respectfully ask my old customers, my old friends and new ones to call and examine my stock. I will deal with you honest and treat you right. If I don't sell you goods as cheap as you can buy the same class of goods elsewhere I don't expect you to buy. Call at the Smith building, house formerly occupied by Creech & Litchford. Merchants and auctioneers.

In style and taste they cannot be surpassed by any in this city or any other. He deems it unnecessary to say any thing of his own skill in the Tailoring business, but it will suffice to say that his experience has not been for a few years only, but for the last 25 years. He therefore solicits a liberal patronage. Prompt attention will be given to persons wishing to have cutting done. Orders from a distance will be thankfully received and promptly attended to.
